

Alicia Scocchia

Alicia Scocchia is a licensed and board-certified genetic counselor with a variety of experience working in the US and Canada. She received a Master of Science in Human Genetics from Sarah Lawrence College in 2014. She currently works as part of the Clinical Genetics Support team at Blueprint Genetics, helping to address the unique genetic testing needs of clinicians and their patients, providing clinical and technical education, and leading clinical research efforts. She also teaches research curriculum and provides thesis project coordination and mentorship for genetic counseling graduate students.