

Valerie Chu

Hailing from Coast Salish territory (Vancouver), Valerie is a recent graduate of the McGill University genetic counselling program. Prior to her graduate studies, she obtained her Bachelor's of Science in Biology at the University of British Columbia. They have previously worked in biotech, clinical research, and knowledge translation settings. Valerie is particularly interested in cardiogenetics, ocular genetics, public health, international genetic counselling, and the intersection between technology and artificial intelligence with genetic counselling.